I. INTRODUCTION

Plaintiffs have the burden of providing this Court with evidence so that it can conduct a "rigorous" analysis of the Rule 23 requirements. Instead of meeting their burden, Plaintiffs ask the Court to take their word for it that there are common issues which predominate, to apply presumptions without Plaintiffs first satisfying their evidentiary burdens, and to take a leap of faith that damages can be calculated.

This is not a typical false labeling case where purchasers were necessarily exposed to a label's alleged false statement before purchase. Younique's products are not sold in retail stores. Consumers could not take a Moodstruck 3D Fiber Lashes product (the "Lash Enhancer") down from a shelf and peruse the label. The Lash Enhancer was sold by individual independent contractors ("Presenters") who posted pictures and videos of themselves using the Lash Enhancer on social media, and the Lash Enhancer was generally sent to the customer after she ordered it online. Presenters controlled how they marketed the Lash Enhancer, and how they did so varied significantly. Younique did not undertake a largescale advertising campaign using the "natural" "green tea" language.

Without submitting evidence of uniform class-wide exposure to a material statement, Plaintiffs improperly ask the Court to presume class-wide reliance thereon. [redacted]. Plaintiffs purchased the Lash Enhancer for a variety of reasons personal to them. Two plaintiffs were Presenters, and [redacted]. There is no common evidence of materiality or exposure to create a presumption of class-wide reliance here.

Though Plaintiffs have the burden of providing this Court with evidence of a viable damages model, [redacted]. Plaintiffs did not meet their burden to provide a viable damages model, nor demonstrate that common issues predominate.

Additionally, Plaintiffs lack standing for reasons different from one another. Plaintiffs' class definition raises further examples of how class treatment is not superior here, nor would it be manageable, because of fact intensive individual issues. Nor are they adequate as Plaintiffs have not actively and appropriately participated in this litigation. Class certification should be denied.

II. RELEVANT BACKGROUND

A. Facts About Younique And The Lash Enhancer

Younique was founded by a brother and sister in 2012 who thought social media could work as a platform for direct sales, specifically for women to sell products to other women. Instead of hosting at-home parties to sell product, they could host "virtual" parties online.

The Lash Enhancer was one of Younique's original products and enhanced the look of lashes. It consisted of two tubes: one with a transplanting gel and a second with loose fibers. (See Images 1[1], 2.) To use the Lash Enhancer, the consumer first applied the transplanting gel to the lashes using a wand, similar to how a mascara is applied. (Ex. 25, 232:8-234:17.)[2] Then the consumer applied the fibers, again using a wand. (Id.) The fibers adhered to the gel, enhancing the appearance of the [1] Younique submits herewith a Compendium of Images that have been authenticated by Plaintiffs to show the Lash Enhancer and how was marketed. The same exhibits are attached to the Henry Declaration at Image Exhibits 1-24.

The two tubes were packaged inside a hard, black case (akin to an eyeglass case). (Image 3, 15.) The front of the case showed only the Younique logo and had no images on the back. Inside of the case was a glossy insert. (Image 4; Dkt. 58, SAC, ¶ 8 (top).) The case was shrink-wrapped in plastic. (Image 4.)

The ingredients were listed on a label stuck to the shrink-wrap on the back of the case. (SAC, ¶ 8 (bottom); Images 5 (for relative size), 6.) The ingredients for the gel described some synthetic ingredients, and the ingredients for the fibers were described at various times as "100% natural green tea fibers," and "campanulaceae of green tea". (Image 6.) Plaintiffs allege that the fibers did not contain green tea fibers but rather were composed of ground up nylon. (SAC, ¶ 10.)

In July 2015, Younique launched a new product, the Moodstruck 3D Fiber Lashes+, and stopped selling the Lash Enhancer.

B. Younique Presenters Sell Using Various Social Media

Younique products are not sold in stores. Instead, Presenters purchase a "presenter kit", use the products in the kit, and post about them across social media platforms such as Facebook and Instagram. (See Images 7-14.) Presenters drive sales by showing how they use and love the products. (Id.) [redacted]. (Ex. 25, 235:24-236:7; Ex. 26, 90:16-91:9.) Younique fills orders on behalf of Presenters. [redacted]

[redacted] (Ex. 26, 157:11-24; Ex. 40.)

Presenters can also place orders on behalf of their customers. The customers then reimburse the Presenter. Younique has no records identifying the end purchaser in these circumstances, or what price was paid for the order.

One of the direct sales marketing strategies is to "host" an online party. Anyone can host. These typically occur on Facebook and can last for multiple days. The host receives points based on the number of sales made at the party, and the points translate to a dollar amount of "Y cash." The host can use Y cash in conjunction with any future purchase to reduce or even eliminate the cost of the purchase. (Ex. 26, 158:2-10.) Hosts can also earn half-price coupons, which are applied to future product purchases to reduce the cost of those purchases.

C. Plaintiffs' Experiences With The Lash Enhancer

1. Brun Received the Lash Enhancer For Free, Hosted a Party to Earn Y Cash and Discounts and Became a Presenter

[redacted] (Ex. 25, 88:4-15.) [redacted] (Id., 89:1-92:1.) [redacted] (Id., 94:25-96:3.) [redacted] (Id., 90:6-11; 94:13-24.) [redacted] (Id., 231:10-235:8; 279:2-280:11; Ex. 39.) Brun created a YouTube video in which she demonstrated the Lash Enhancer on herself, did not mention "natural" "green tea" fibers, and did not display the product label. (See Image 7; 231:16-234:8; https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=97wKoHB2Svg.) [redacted] (Ex. 25, 279:21-280:8.) [redacted] (Id., 280:9-11.)

[redacted] (Id., 51:3-12.) In response to Younique's document requests, she produced one receipt showing a purchase of the Lash Enhancer on November 18, 2014. (Ex. 30, PL00002.) Just before her deposition, her counsel produced eight more receipts. (Exs. 12-18, 20.) These showed Brun buying five Lash Enhancers at one time, buying the Lash Enhancer as part of a product collection, and buying the Lash Enhancer with a half price coupon. [redacted] Ex. 25, 50:7-16 (emphasis added); 50:17-51:2.)

[redacted]. (Phillips Decl., ¶¶ 11-18.) [redacted] (Ex. 25, 91:10-15.) [redacted] (Phillips Decl., ¶¶ 11-18.) [redacted] (Id.; Ex. 25, 131:23-134:25.)

2. Orlowsky Wanted to Work From Home, Became a Presenter and Sold The Lash Enhancer by Showing Customers How it Enhanced Their Lashes

[redacted] (Ex. 26, 92:18-93:5.) [redacted] Id., 129:17-21; 131:9-25.) [redacted] See Images 8-13; Ex. 26, 90:4-91:24; 94:8-100:18; 120:23-121:10.) [redacted] (Id., 192:20-193:10.) [redacted] (Id., 90:9-92:13.) Orlowsky's most successful effort was paying make-up artist Alexandrea Garza $120 to post a video demonstration of the Lash Enhancer to her YouTube. (Id., 193:16-20, 194:6-13; see https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=BOvTuxmX0ms). In this video, which has over 1.2 million views, Garza does not mention "natural," "green tea," or show the product label. Garza demonstrates applying the Lash Enhancer and concludes by showing one eye with the Lash Enhancer applied and one eye without. (Id., 195:23-204:10.) [redacted](Id., 194:1-5.)

In her own video (https://www.youtube.com/watch?v=_N_1UedBZpY), Orlowsky demonstrates how to apply the Lash Enhancer on herself, comparing one eye with the Lash Enhancer and one without. (Id., 216:15-220:1.) She never mentions natural green tea fibers or displays the Lash Enhancer label. (Id.)

[redacted](Id., 111:16-113:10; 112:7-14.) [redacted]

[redacted](See Images 8-13; Ex. 26, 95:21-98:10; 100:4-18; 110:15-113:14.) [redacted]

[redacted](Id., 79:16-80:4; 103:2-3; 109:2-110:15, Exs. 42-43.)

[redacted](Ex. 26, 161:2-11.) [redacted]

[redacted](Images 1, 3, 14-24; Ex. 26, 161:2-7; 163:3-7; 164:4-7; 165:1-9; 165:15-18; 165:22-25; 166:5-8; 166:12-15; 167:3-6; 168:6-9; 168:13-16; 169:4-8; 169:25-170:2.)

[redacted](Id., 31:3-24.) Though counsel produced no receipts in response to Younique's document requests and her responses said she had "none," counsel produced four receipts the morning of her deposition. (Id., Exs. 41, 44.) [redacted]

[redacted] (Ex. 26, 30:20-31:11.) [redacted] (Id.) [redacted]. (Id., 134:24-135:10.)

Orlowsky did not pay $29 for the Lash Enhancer. Her four receipts show that she twice purchased the Lash Enhancer as a stand-alone product, and twice as part of a collection of products. (Ex. 41.) [redacted] (Phillips Decl., ¶¶ 19-22; see also Ex. 26, 157:11-24.) [redacted] (Ex. 26, 157:11-24.) [redacted] (Id. 81:18-20.)

3. Schmitt Bought the Lash Enhancer Because Women at a Dinner Party Recommended It

[redacted] (Ex. 27, 32:19-33:13.) [redacted] (Id., 131:2-15.) [redacted] (Id., 36:5-15; 39:19-40:6.) [redacted] (Id.) [redacted] (Id., 102:18-104:2.) [redacted] (Id., 32:19-33:13.) [redacted] (Id., 41:5-42:6.) [redacted] (Id., 39:19-25.)

4. Reilly Bought the Lash Enhancer to Support Her Cousin, a Presenter, and Because it was the "Hot Product" of the Season

[redacted] (Ex. 28, 43:24-44:10.) [redacted] (Id., 34:8-15.) [redacted] (Id., 28:24-29:6; 30:5-32:7.) [redacted] (Id., 64:12-65:3.) [redacted] (Id., 33:23-34:7.)

[redacted] [redacted] (Id., 153:19-154:15.) [redacted] [redacted] (Id., 27:15-29:1; 58:22-25.) [redacted] [redacted] (Id., 60:21-62:3.) [redacted] [redacted] [redacted] (Id., 64:6-11.) [redacted] (Id., 134:21-135:9.)

D. Manufacturing History of the Lash Enhancer

Among other information, Younique expects to present the following at trial: [redacted] (Exs. 49-58.) [redacted] (Id.) [redacted] [redacted] [redacted] [redacted] (Ex. 48, p. 3.) After Younique began using a new vendor named Senos, Six Plus sent an ingredients list to Younique listing the fibers as "polyvinyl alcohol fiber," contrary to Younique's orders. Younique ceased ordering the Lash Enhancer from Six Plus, and relied on Senos for the remaining purchases of the product. [redacted] [redacted] (Ex. 47.) [redacted] [redacted] (Exs. 52-58.)

III. PROCEDURAL HISTORY

[redacted] (Ex. 25, 28:4-30:9, Ex. 26, 60:8-61:11; Ex. 27, 67:5-71:2; Ex. 28, 23:5-18.) [redacted] (Ex. 25, 31:2-15; 173:9-174:4; Ex. 26, 153:12-154:9; Ex. 27, 67:5-71:2; 73:2-8; Ex. 28, 121:12-122:6; 148:7-23.)

Schmitt filed suit on August 16, 2017 and amended her complaint on October 16, 2017, adding the remaining plaintiffs. (Dkts. 1, 43.) The parties filed a joint scheduling conference report and appeared for the conference on December 11, 2017. (Dkts. 54, 56, 56-1.) The parties served initial disclosures on January 10, 2018. (Henry Decl., ¶ 3.) Both parties served document requests on February 14, 2018. (Id., ¶ 4.) One month later, Plaintiffs produced eight pages of documents, with many written responses indicating that they had "none". (Id. ¶¶ 4, 36; Ex. 30.) Regarding Plaintiffs' requests, after conferring with Plaintiffs as to the types of sales data needed, Younique produced sales data and retail pricing in Excel format, along with the presenter agreements, among other responsive documents, on April 18, 2018. (Id. ¶¶ 4, 67; Ex. 61.) Younique also served deposition notices for the Plaintiffs on April 18, but Plaintiffs did not appear and did not provide alternative dates. (Id., ¶ 4.) Ultimately, counsel stipulated to allow Plaintiffs' depositions to proceed beyond the discovery cutoff, allow Plaintiffs to depose Younique's Rule 30(b)(6) witness (though Plaintiffs had not noticed any depositions), and postpone Plaintiffs' filing of their motion for class certification. (Dkt. 67.) On August 1, 2018, Plaintiffs served their expert reports. (Henry Decl., ¶ 5.)

IV. LEGAL STANDARD FOR CLASS CERTIFICATION

"The class action is an exception to the usual rule that litigation is conducted by and on behalf of the individual named parties only." Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. v. Dukes, 564 U.S. 338, 348 (2011) (internal cites omitted). "To come within the exception, a party seeking to maintain a class action must affirmatively demonstrate his compliance with Rule 23." Comcast Corp. v. Behrend, 569 U.S. 27, 33 (2013) (internal cites omitted). Plaintiffs conceded that they must carry their burden with evidentiary proof. Id.; see Mot., 11.

V. CLASS CERTIFICATION SHOULD BE DENIED

A. Plaintiffs' Motion Must Be Denied Because They Lack Standing

If Plaintiffs fail to establish their own standing, they may not seek relief on behalf of others. O'Shea v. Littleton, 414 U.S. 488, 494 (1974).

As described in Younique's Motion for Summary Judgment (Dkt. 94), Plaintiffs lack standing because they did not rely on the alleged "natural" "green tea" language and were not harmed by it. [redacted] (Ex. 28, 67:12-18; 149:2-11; 43:24-44:10; 134:21-135:9.) [redacted]. (Ex. 26, 92:18-93:5; 131:9-25; 31:12-32:7; 79:16-80:4; 112:7-14; 195:3-7.) [redacted]. (Id., 81:18-20.) [redacted]. (Id., 122:11-123:11; 37:23-38:1.) [redacted]. (Ex. 27, 31:17-33:13; 41:2-42:6; 39:19-40:6; 102:18-104:2.) [redacted]. (Id., 129:5-130:1.) [redacted]. (Ex. 25, 91:5-18; 166:24-167:6.) [redacted]. (Id., 158:15-161:3; 234:4-20; 279:21-280:8.) [redacted]. (Id., 50:7-51:2.)

B. Plaintiffs Failed To Demonstrate They Meet the Commonality Requirement of Rule 23(a)

Rule 23(a)(2) requires that the party seeking certification show that "there are questions of law or fact common to the class." This requires the court to "carefully scrutinize the relationship between a case's common and individual facts." In re SFPP Right-of-Way Claims, 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 85973, *33 (C.D. Cal. May 23, 2017) (citing Tyson Foods, Inc. v. Bouaphakeo, 136 S. Ct. 1036, 1045 (2016).) "[A] common question is one where the same evidence will suffice for each member to make a prima facie showing". Id. What matters is "the capacity of a classwide proceeding to generate common answers apt to drive the resolution of the litigation." Dukes, 564 U.S. at 350.

Plaintiffs assert that commonality is satisfied because the "class members were subjected to the same labeling that contained the same misrepresentations," but their testimony disproves this assertion. Mot., 12:17-20. None of the Plaintiffs saw the label before they obtained the Lash Enhancer. They ordered the product online under different circumstances: [redacted]. None handled the product before purchase and thus did not review the label.

Plaintiffs contend that materiality is one of the issues that will "revolve around defendant's conduct not the individual experience of plaintiffs." Mot., 12:21-25. Plaintiffs do not describe how they will rely on Younique's conduct to prove materiality. Plaintiffs ignore their admissions which show that whether the "natural" "green tea" language was material varied from person to person. [redacted] [redacted].

Both presenter Plaintiffs admitted that it was how the Lash Enhancer made the lashes appear that was material to customers. [redacted] YouTube video by a makeup artist demonstrating the product without a single mention of the ingredients, "green tea" or "natural." [redacted]. Thus, there is no common evidence that the "natural" "green tea" language was material.

As to proving falsity, Plaintiffs pose the question "What were the fibers made of?", but do not describe how they will answer this question with common evidence at trial. Though they alleged that the Lash Enhancer is made of "ground up nylon" (SAC, ¶ 10), they point to only one piece of evidence in their Motion, [redacted] Plaintiffs ignore that Younique then ordered fibers from a different vendor [redacted] (Exs. 47, 52-58.) [redacted] Plaintiffs do not establish that it is common evidence of falsity as to the entire class period and both manufacturers.

As for damages, Plaintiffs side-step the issue, apparently contending it can be dealt with through their expert, but do not address their own circumstances. As described in Section D below, Plaintiffs have not proffered a viable damages model. [redacted] (Phillips Decl., ¶¶ 11-22.) Plaintiffs narrowed the class to purchasers of the Lash Enhancer for personal use (as opposed to resale), but ignore that Brun [redacted] (Phillips Decl., ¶ 8.) Whether, and by how much, Plaintiffs were damaged is not a common issue, but rather would require an individualized analysis of each customer. (See also, Tomlin Decl., ¶ 40.)

There are no common issues to satisfy Rule 23(a)(2).

C. Plaintiffs Are Wrong that Class-wide Reliance Can Be Presumed

As part of their commonality argument, Plaintiffs refer to their predominance argument where they assert under Rule 23(b)(3) that class-wide reliance can be presumed, citing In re Tobacco II Cases, 46 Cal.4th 298, 326 (2009). Mot., 12, 18. To qualify for a presumption of reliance, however, Plaintiffs must establish class-wide exposure to a material representation. Mazza v. Am. Honda Motor Co. Inc., 666 F.3d 581, 596 (9th Cir. 2012). Plaintiffs do not establish class-wide exposure to the "natural" "green tea" language nor do they establish that the language was material to a reasonable consumer or the class.

1. There Is No Common Evidence Of Uniform Exposure To The "Natural" "Green Tea" Language

Plaintiffs must show that there was uniform, class-wide exposure to the allegedly false advertising. Ehret v. Uber Techs., Inc., 148 F.Supp.3d 884, 901 (N.D. Cal. 2014) (UCL and CLRA); In re ConAgra Foods, Inc., 90 F.Supp.3d 919, 1011 (C.D. Cal. 2015) (OCSPA); Smith v. WM. Wrigley Jr. Co., 663 F.Supp.2d 1336, 1339-40 (S. Fla. 2009) (FDUTPA). A consumer who was never exposed to the alleged false advertising cannot recover under the UCL. Mazza, 666 F.3d at 596 (vacating order certifying class because the advertising campaign was limited in scope, consisting of product brochures and TV commercials to which not all class members were exposed); accord Berger v. Home Depot USA, Inc., 741 F.3d 1061, 1069 (9th Cir. 2014) (affirming denial of class certification because there was no uniform exposure to a set of representations).

Plaintiffs suggest they are entitled to a presumption of exposure under Tobacco II, but Tobacco II requires a "decades-long campaign of deceptive advertising and misleading statements" before the presumption arises. 46 Cal.4th at 306. Where, as here, there is no such evidence, exposure may not be presumed.

Plaintiffs offered only limited evidence of exposure to the class; namely, the Lash Enhancer label, evidence that Younique markets itself as a natural beauty company, and [redacted]. (Mot., 8:12-9:21.)

None of Plaintiffs' evidence proves class-wide exposure to the "natural" "green tea" language. First, the Lash Enhancer was sold online and through presenters – there is no common evidence that consumers were exposed to the label before purchase.[3] Second, the evidence that Younique marketed itself as a natural beauty company was unsupported. [redacted] (Ex. 29, 67:12-68:4.) Plaintiffs' two website captures which mention "natural beauty" from 2013 and 2014 do not rise to the level of classwide exposure. [redacted]

[3] Even if the putative class had seen the label before purchase, the "natural" "green tea" language was not sufficiently prominent to assume class-wide exposure as it appeared on the back in small font. Hadley v. Kellogg Sales Co., 2018 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 140124, *27-28 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 17, 2018) (denying class certification; classwide exposure to misleading language on box of cereal bars could not be presumed given it appeared on the back in small font in a block of text).

[redacted]. (Mot., Ex. 4.) None of Plaintiffs testified they were exposed to any of these statements before purchase.

In Cohen v. DirecTV, Inc., 178 Cal.App.4th 966, 979 (2009), the court denied class certification in part because the class included subscribers who never saw the DirecTV ads and instead made their purchasing decisions based on word-of-mouth, or because they saw DirecTV HD in a store or in a home and presumably liked it.

For the same reasons, the class should not be certified here. [redacted] Both Orlowsky and Brun used YouTube videos to sell the Lash Enhancer, which do not mention "natural" or "green tea." They repeatedly posted images and information about the Lash Enhancer on social media that did not mention "natural" or "green tea."

2. There Is No Common Evidence Showing That The "Natural" and "Green Tea" Language Was Material

Plaintiffs are not entitled to a presumption of class-wide reliance because they have not shown that the "natural" "green tea" language was material. To obtain the presumption of class-wide reliance, Plaintiffs must first show that the representation was "a substantial factor, in influencing" their decisions to purchase the Lash Enhancer. Tobacco II, supra, 46 Cal.4th at 326-28. Only if the label substantially influenced their purchasing decisions would the court assess whether the label was material; that is, whether "a reasonable man would attach importance to its existence or nonexistence in determining his choice of action…". Id.

In Kosta v. Del Monte Foods, Inc., 308 F.R.D. 217, 225, 229-230 (N.D. Cal. 2015), even though plaintiffs offered an expert declaration addressing materiality, it was too generic to satisfy the plaintiffs' burden. The court concluded that "While materiality and reliance for purposes of UCL, FAL and CRLA claims can be subject to common proof on a classwide basis under some circumstances, Plaintiffs here have offered no valid means by which such classwide proof would be made."

Here, Plaintiffs offered no expert testimony of materiality, nor did they identify an expert on materiality for trial. (Henry Decl., ¶ 5.) In contrast, Younique has submitted Plaintiffs' admissions that they purchased the Lash Enhancer for reasons unrelated to the "natural" "green tea" language, [redacted] Younique has also submitted evidence of how presenters sold the product without any reference to "natural" or "green tea", and the product sold itself when customers saw the difference on lashes with and without it.

The evidence before the Court demonstrates that customers did not rely on the "natural" "green tea" language; at a minimum, it varied from customer to customer, and the case should not be certified as a class action. Webb v. Carter's Inc., 272 F.R.D. 489, 502 (C.D. Cal. 2011) ("[I]f the issue of materiality or reliance is a matter that would vary from consumer to consumer, the issue is not subject to common proof, and the action is properly not certified as a class action."); accord, Stearns v. Ticketmaster Corp., 655 F.3d 1013, 1022 (9th Cir. 2011); In re Vioxx Class Cases, 180 Cal.App.4th 116, 133 (2009) (plaintiffs offered "no evidence indicating the inquiry can be conducted on a [class-wide] basis," while the defendant had introduced "overwhelming evidence" that it could not be); Marks v. C.P. Chem. Co., 31 Ohio St. 3d 200, 206 (1987) (same rule under OCSPA).

D. Plaintiffs Have Not Met Their Burden Of Providing A Legally Viable Damages Model Under Comcast

Plaintiffs must present a damages model that is consistent with their theory of liability. Comcast, 569 U.S. at 35. The "model purporting to serve as evidence of damages in this class action must measure only those damages attributable to [the defendant's conduct]. If the model does not even attempt to do that, it cannot possibly establish that damages are susceptible of measurement across the entire class for purposes of Rule 23(b)(3)." Id. (internal cites omitted).

Plaintiffs submit the May report in which he discusses a full refund model, opines he could prepare a disgorgement of profits model, and opines he could prepare a regression model to measure price premium. As described below and in the accompanying declaration of economist Jonathan Tomlin, Plaintiffs fail to meet their burden of presenting any viable model.

1. The "Full Refund" And "Profit Disgorgement Models" Are Not Viable Damages Models

Properly calculated, restitution in false advertising cases is "the difference between what the plaintiff paid and the value of what the plaintiff received." In re Vioxx Class Cases, 180 Cal.App.4th 116, 131 (2009); Chowning v. Kohl's Dept. Stores, Inc., 2018 U.S. App. LEXIS 16336, *2 (9th Cir. June 18, 2018); Rollins, Inc. v. Butland, 951 So.2d 860, 869 (Fla. 2d DCA 2006) (FDUPTA). This is the same measure of damages permitted for breach of warranty and MMWA. Cal. Comm. Code § 2714(2); Oh. Rev. Code § 1302.88; Tenn. Code § 47-2-714(2); Tuscany Invs. LLC v. Daimler Trucks North Am. LLC, 2015 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 109842, *5 (N.D. Cal. Aug. 19, 2015) (MMWA).

A full refund is available only when plaintiffs prove the product had no value. Stathakos v. Columbia Sportswear Co., 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 72417, *28 (N.D. Cal. May 11, 2017); Brazil v. Dole Packaged Foods, LLC, 660 Fed.Appx. 531, 534 (9th Cir. 2016) (rejecting full refund model because "a plaintiff cannot be awarded a full refund unless the product she purchased was worthless".)

Nonrestitutionary disgorgement, which focuses on the defendant's unjust enrichment, is not available in a class action under the CLRA and UCL. In re Tobacco II, 240 Cal.App.4th 779, 800 (2015).

Plaintiffs' full refund and profit disgorgement models are not tied to their theories of liability. Plaintiffs do not provide any evidence that the Lash Enhancer had "no value" to them to support a full refund. Rather, Plaintiffs admitted they obtained value from their purchases [redacted]

[redacted] (Ex. 25, 51:3-12; 284:19-285:8; Ex. 26, 31:12-24; Ex. 27, 58:22-25; Ex. 28, 52:8-22.) For "profit disgorgement," Plaintiffs cite no case law holding that they are entitled to receive Younique's profits from the Lash Enhancer sales. Such a remedy is nonrestitutionary disgorgement and fails to measure the difference between the price paid versus the value of the product as received. Accordingly, neither model satisfies their obligations under Comcast.

2. Plaintiffs Have Not Carried Their Burden Of Showing That A Hedonic Regression Can Be Performed

Plaintiffs have the burden of showing that their proposed hedonic regression can in fact be performed to measure the difference between the price paid and the value of the product received. See Brazil v. Dole Packaged Foods, LLC, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 157575, *41 (N.D. Cal. Nov. 6, 2014) (it was not enough to "just say that the Regression Model controls for other factors; Brazil must show the Court that the model can. Brazil has not done so. Thus, Brazil has not met his burden …"). Even where plaintiffs have submitted regression models, courts have rejected them finding that they were inadequate to measure the available relief. See Bruton v. Gerber, 2018 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 30814, *29-36 (N.D. Cal. Feb. 13, 2018) (rejecting regression model in false advertising case); Werdebaugh v. Blue Diamond, 2014 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 173789, *29-33 (N.D. Cal. Dec. 15, 2014) (same).

Dr. May has not actually prepared a regression model. (Dkt. 80-2, ¶ 38.) Dr. May generally stated that he might be able to use a regression model to measure the difference between the price paid and the value of the Lash Enhancer received. Dr. May has apparently not collected the data he believes he needs. He has not provided a clearly-defined list of variables, has not determined whether the data related to any or all of his proposed control variables exists, and has not determined, or shown how he would determine, which competing and complementary products he would use. Courts facing a similar dearth of specific facts about a regression model have refused to certify class actions. See Jones v. ConAgra Foods, Inc., 2014 U.S. Dist.

LEXIS 81292, *77-78 (N.D. Cal. June 13, 2014); Guido v. L'Oreal, USA, Inc., 2013 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 94031, *44-45 (C.D. Cal. July 1, 2013) (refusing to certify California class; "without evidence affirmatively demonstrating that the true market price [] can be calculated on a classwide basis, plaintiffs' claim that there is a classwide method of granting relief is factually unsupported."); Randolph v. J.M. Smucker Co., 303 F.R.D. 679, 698 (S.D. Fla. 2014) (denying class certification; "Other than the bald, unsupported assertion that this method will work, Plaintiff presents no hard-and-fast evidence that the premium is capable of measurement.").

The court should not take Dr. May at his word that his theoretical regression model could work. Economist Jonathan Tomlin reviewed May's bare bones declaration and concluded [redacted] (Tomlin Decl., ¶ 20.) [redacted] (Id., ¶¶ 21-40.) [redacted] (Id., ¶ 24.) [redacted] (Id., ¶¶ 25-33.) [redacted] (Id., ¶¶ 24-40.)

Because Dr. May presents no explanation of the relationship between his "opinions" and the facts of this case, Plaintiffs have not carried their burden of showing that "damages are susceptible of measurement across the entire class." Comcast, 569 U.S. at 35.

3. Dr. May's Models are Incomplete

[redacted] (Tomlin Decl., ¶¶ 19, 41-42.) [redacted] (May Decl., ¶¶ 14 [redacted]), 18 ("[redacted]"), 22 ("[redacted]"); 27-28.)

While the Lash Enhancer had a consistent retail price ($29), that is not the price that many customers actually paid. [redacted]. (Phillips Decl., ¶ 8; Ex. 26, 81:1-14; Ex. 25, 133:18-134:3.) [redacted]. (Tomlin Decl., ¶¶ 34-40.) [redacted] his model provides no mechanism to calculate even individual damages.[4] [redacted]. (Dkt. 80-2, ¶ 22.) Plaintiffs never asked for information about the new product during discovery. (Ex. 59, p. 6-7 (defining "Product" as the "Fiber Lashes identified in Plaintiffs' complaint").) [redacted]. (Tomlin Decl., ¶¶ 24-33.) As for third party data, Plaintiffs do not explain why they did not obtain this information, [redacted]. (Dkt. 80-2, ¶ 22.) Plaintiffs served a subpoena for third party mascara data on IRI Worldwide on July 30, 2018, two days before May's report was due and two months after the close of discovery. (Ex. 60.) [redacted].

Plaintiffs provide no explanation excusing the absence of a viable model. Initial expert reports were due on August 1, 2018, and Plaintiffs submitted the May declaration as his expert report. Plaintiffs obtained an additional 60 days to prepare their motion for class certification. (Dkt. 67.) Plaintiffs did not meet their burden under Comcast, 569 U.S. at 35; Tomlin Decl., ¶ 7.

[4] Plaintiffs cannot justify Dr. May's incomplete model. [redacted] Plaintiffs apparently did not provide May with the presenter agreements or the deposition transcripts of Orlowsky and Brun that also discuss these economics.

E. Individual Issues As To Each Class Member Demonstrate that The Class Mechanism is Not Superior or Manageable

Without providing any sort of trial plan, Plaintiffs conclude that "there will be no difficulties managing this action because it concerns straightforward claims for breach of warranty and consumer fraud based on a limited number of labeling statements that conveyed consistent messages." Mot., 30. Plaintiffs also argue that the class definition is simple. Mot., 31. Plaintiffs are wrong.

Plaintiffs' proposed class definition presents the following factual inquiries just to determine whether a person is a member of the class (Mot., 11):

(1) Did the class member purchase a "stand-alone" Lash Enhancer (rather than as part of a collection)? Plaintiffs have chosen to forego recovery where the Lash Enhancer was sold as part of a collection (Mot. Ex. 5.), presumably because [redacted]. Both Brun and Orlowky purchased the Lash Enhancer as part of a collection. (Exs. 33, 37, 41.)

(2) Did the class member purchase the Lash Enhancer for "personal, family or house-hold use"? [redacted] (Ex. 26, 30:20-31:24; 134:24-135:10; Ex. 25, 50:7-16.) Thus, identifying the class members and the purchases at issue would be fact intensive and consuming, and according to Brun, [redacted]

Even if this narrow class definition were workable, it does not address the variables as to whether a class member suffered damages, and if so, the extent. Presumably, Plaintiffs narrowed the class definition to "stand-alone" purchases because the price of the Lash Enhancer varied such that it would prevent their expert from preparing a viable damages model. Plaintiffs ignore the multiple other ways the price of the Lash Enhancer varies. Customers can earn Y cash and half-price coupons to offset the cost of future purchases, and presenters can earn commissions.

Finally, all putative class members who are or were presenters are subject to arbitration clauses in their agreements with Younique. Younique produced copies of these agreements and asserted arbitration in its answer (Dkt. 60, ¶¶ 16, 26; Ex. 40). Plaintiffs fail to address Younique's right to enforce these agreements. The fact that numerous putative class members are subject to arbitration agreements weighs against certification. Tan v. GrubHub, Inc., 2016 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 186342, *12-14 (N.D. Cal. July 19, 2016) (no commonality where "vast majority of class members" were "potentially bound" by arbitration and class action waivers).

F. Plaintiffs And Their Counsel Are Not Adequate

To establish adequacy under Rule 23(a)(4), Plaintiffs must show that they will "fairly and adequately protect the interests of the class." Fed. R. Civ. Proc. 23(a)(4). To determine this, courts ask, "(1) do the named plaintiffs and their counsel have any conflicts of interest with other class members and (2) will the named plaintiffs and their counsel prosecute the action vigorously on behalf of the class?" Ellis v. Costco Wholesale Corp., 657 F.3d 970, 985 (9th Cir. 2011) (internal cites omitted).

"The doctrine of claim-splitting bars a party from bringing claims arising from the same set of facts in successive actions, rather than bringing them all at once." Rivera v. Am. Fedn. Of State, 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 110743, *7-8 (N.D. Cal. July 17, 2017) (citing U.S. v. Haytian Republic, 154 U.S. 118, 124-25 (1894)). In this way, it is similar to the doctrine of res judicata. Rivera, 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS at *8-9. While the Ninth Circuit has not had occasion to rule on this issue, the Fifth Circuit has ruled that claim splitting can create an "irreconcilable conflict of interest with the class" going to adequacy. Slade v. Progressive Sec. Ins. Co., 856 F.3d 408, 412 (5th Cir. 2017). At least one California district court has applied the Fifth Circuit's analysis. Andren v. Alere, Inc., 2017 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 209405, *23-25 (S.D. Cal. Dec. 20, 2017).

Plaintiffs have not demonstrated that they are conflict free and are adequately protecting the interests of the class. [redacted]

[redacted]. (Tomlin Decl., ¶¶ 34-37.) Class members who hosted parties could earn discounts from sales of the Lash Enhancer and class members who were presenters also earned commissions from those sales. In addition, presumably because they wish to avoid the complications of the varying prices of the Lash Enhancer when sold collections, Plaintiffs defined the class to exclude purchases of the product in collections. (Dkt. 80-1, p. 11 ("consumers who purchased stand-alone [Lash Enhancer] between October 2012 and July 2015 for personal, family or household use.").) If Plaintiffs' liability theory were correct, they will waive recovery for class members who also purchased the product as part of a collection. Two of Brun's purchases and two of Orlowsky's purchases were through collections and apparently not subject to recovery under Plaintiffs' plan.

"[A] lawyer's unethical conduct, both before and during the litigation in question, is relevant to determining whether counsel is adequate under Rule 23." White v. Experian Info. Solutions, 993 F.Supp.2d 1154, 1170 (C.D. Cal. 2014).

This is an attorney-orchestrated lawsuit resulting from counsel's internet solicitation of clients. [redacted].[5] (Ex. 28, 129:10-132:3; Ex. 45.) [redacted]. District courts have refused to certify class actions where lawsuits were drummed up in this manner. Bodner v. Oreck, LLC, 2007 U.S. Dist. LEXIS 30408, *5-6 (N.D. Cal. Apr. 25, 2007).

Plaintiffs and their counsel have abused the discovery process by failing to provide requested documents and information and serving false discovery responses.

[5] New York prohibits solicitation in forums that permit "real-time or interactive communication." N.Y.R.P.C. 7.3 ("A lawyer shall not engage in solicitation by … real-time or interactive computer-accessed communication…"; N.Y. Ethics Opinion 899 (2011) (prohibiting solicitation in forums that permit "real-time or interactive communication."); N.Y. Ethics Opinion 1110 (2016) (same).

Plaintiffs formally produced eight pages of documents and then additional pages immediately before or during their depositions months later. (Henry Decl. ¶ 4.) [redacted] (Ex. 26, 23:6-24:12; 27:22-31:15; 182:25-185:11; Ex. 25, 43:1-16; Exs. 41, 44.)

Plaintiffs have not participated in efforts to resolve this case. [redacted]. (Ex. 28, 164:7-165:25; Ex. 26, 82:2-24.) Plaintiffs did not attend the private mediation, as required by Local Rule 16-15.5(b) – only Plaintiffs' counsel attended. (Henry Decl., ¶ 6.) This shows class counsel's inadequacy.

Because Plaintiffs are not pursuing all available relief and their counsel are not adequate, class certification should be denied.

VI. CONCLUSION

Plaintiffs have not met their burden of providing this Court with evidence that the Rule 23 requirements have been met. Among other things, Plaintiffs have not shown that there is common evidence of exposure to the alleged false label, nor shown that the Lash Enhancer label is material to consumers. Their motion for class certification should be denied.
